FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

The Oregon Clinic Welcomes New Physician to the Neurology Clinic West

Portland, Ore., Feb. 17, 2011 – The Oregon Clinic's Neurology Clinic West division welcomes Lee Marshall, DO. Dr. Marshall is a neurologist with special interests in aging, memory, and disorders of mood, behavior and stroke. He most recently had a private practice in Bloomfield Hills, Mich. He was a staff member at several hospitals and was a team neurologist for the Michigan Stroke Network utilizing telerobotics.

Dr. Marshall received his Doctorate of Osteopathic Medicine at Michigan State University, College of Osteopathic Medicine in East Lansing, Mich. in 1990. He completed internships at Botsford General Hospital in Farmington Hills, Mich. and Providence Hospital in Southfield, Mich. He completed his neurology residency at Botsford General Hospital.

Originally from Detroit, Mich., Dr. Marshall now lives in Portland, Ore., with his wife, Susan, who is a clinical psychologist. In his spare time, Dr. Marshall enjoys golfing, biking, hiking, traveling and listening to various types of music. He also enjoys film and theater. Dr. Marshall and his wife share an appreciation for the intricate and layered connections between mind and body and the power and resilience of the human spirit.

"It is a pleasure to be working with The Oregon Clinic," said Dr. Marshall. In my work, I am committed to a respectful, individualized approach to neurological assessment and treatment, within the context of a mutually trusting and candid patient-physician relationship. I hope to offer new and valuable information and ways of understanding symptom and disease expressions that will empower patients and their families to advocate for themselves, make informed choices, and live productive and meaningful lives."
