The Oregon Clinic Welcomes New Physician to ENT East Division

Portland, Ore., October 23, 2009 – The Oregon Clinic, ENT East division welcomes Leigh Anne Dew, MD. Dr. Dew is board certified by the American Board of Otolaryngology. Her special interests are medical and surgical treatment of allergic rhinitis and chronic sinusitis including allergy testing and endoscopic sinus surgery. She most recently was a physician for the Mt. Hood Ear, Nose, Throat and Allergy clinic in Portland.

Dr. Dew received her medical degree from the Medical College of Georgia in Augusta in 1992. She completed her surgical internship at Virginia Mason Hospital in Seattle, and she completed her research fellowship at the University of Washington, Bloedel Hearing Research Center.

Originally from Atlanta, Dr. Dew graduated from the University of Georgia in 1988. She is the author of numerous research articles and is also the recipient of the Vice-President's Research Award from the Western Section Triologic Society. She is also the recipient of the House Ear Institute Fellowship Alumni Grant.

Dr. Dew now lives in Portland with her husband and two children, Bridger and Lily Grace. She enjoys windsurfing, skiing, and spending time with her family. Her professional interests include treatment of voice disorders, and surgical treatment of chronic infections of the ear and to restore hearing.

"My goal is to thoroughly educate the patient about their disease and the symptoms that they are experiencing, which truly allows the patient to have an active part in the medical decision making process. I've found that a collaborative relationship with the patient allows me to tailor a treatment that the patient is comfortable with and that fits well with their lifestyle."
